Canucks' fans take over the city

Vancouverites go crazy as team ekes out a one-goal victory against the Boston Bruins

PHYLICIA TORREVILLAS
@METRONEWS.CA

"We want the cup. We want the cup."

That's what every Canucks fan on the streets of Downtown Vancouver chanted after Raffi Torres broke a scoreless tie in the dying seconds of Game 1 against the Boston Bruins last night.

Hayley Baxter, who watched the game on the giant screen on Granville Street, said she didn't doubt the Canucks would get the job done.

"I wasn't nervous at all," Baxter said. "I knew they were going to win from the start."

A sea of blue, white and green filled Granville and Hamilton streets as fans celebrated the Canucks' effort to win the first game with only 18.5 seconds left in the third period.

Fans hoisted replicas of the Stanley Cup and gave each other high-fives and hugs. You'd have thought they had already won the cup. But it might not be too far away: the Canucks are one down, three to go in the series.

Leyli Zarif said it was great to see everybody coming together to cheer on the Canucks.

"This is our time," she said. "We need to believe and I know we are going to get it."

Canucks fever is even bringing out the team spirit in Vancouverites who are not big fans or didn't follow the team's playoff run.

"I love the enthusiasm and spirit of Vancouver," said Trevor Duong, who admitted he wasn't a big fan but was happy that the Canucks won. "It is addicting and I can't get enough."

Amber South, who brought her three sons along to watch the game on Granville Street for the first time, said seeing the excitement and energy from the fans was a great experience for her and her sons.

"We don't really follow the Canucks but this was just crazy," South said. "Everybody's running around. It's a great family affair."

▶ D.J. Joe, a participant in the Hope in Shadows photography contest, shows off her camera on East Hastings Street yesterday.

You don't have to look far to find inspiration as a Hope in Shadows calendar photography contestant, says veteran participant D.J. Joe.

"I'm inspired by these pictures," Joe said, pointing to past calendar pages taped to the window of the Interurban Gallery on East Hastings Street, where volunteers were handing out cameras for this year's contest.

"Taking pictures like this, the public is looking at us in a different way."

That's part of the point of Hope in Shadows, which aims to dispel stereotypes about the Downtown Eastside, said Paul Ryan, one of the organizers.

"It's about community pride," he said. "They're showing there is a really strong community here."

One participant who taught so many of the returning photographers was Julie Rogers, who died recently.

Rogers's husband, Rod Holland, was on hand picking up his camera. He said it's an honour to realize just how many people his wife inspired.

"I'm dedicating my pictures to her," Joe said. "She was a great role model down here."

Shamed into generosity?

A UBC study asked participants to 'privately' donate to a communal pot — then revealed their contributions

SAHARA GIANNONE
VANCOUVER@METRONEWS.CA

Shame and honour can increase social co-operation by as much as 50 per cent, according to researchers at the University of British Columbia.

Students were given money and asked to privately contribute to a communal fund that would be equally split among participants.

Late in the experiment, the two most generous and two least generous players were revealed — resulting in more co-operation overall from participants.

"Shame and honour are increasingly used to affect policy and cultural change," said lead author Jennifer Jacquet, a post-doctoral fellow in UBC's Fisheries Centre.

The study built on previous experiments showing that co-operation can be achieved if participants can establish and maintain a good reputation.

"In contrast to previous studies, the real-life reputation of our participants was at stake," said co-author Arne Traulsen, from the Max Planck Institute.

"This could be a perquisite for shame and honour to work in other contexts."

Two men stabbed in downtown crimes

An early-morning stabbing yesterday in the Downtown Eastside left a man in critical condition.

Police were called to Oppenheimer Park in the 400 block of East Cordova Street around 1 a.m. and found the man stabbed and unconscious, lying in the middle of the park, said Const. Lindsey Houghton in a press release.

The man, who is believed to be in his 40s or 50s, was rushed to hospital and underwent surgery for life-threatening injuries. He remains in hospital. No suspects have been identified.

Meanwhile, Victoria police have arrested a 47-year-old man after a stabbing this morning in the 900 block of Douglas Street. A 56-year-old man was stabbed in the hand after a confrontation on a sidewalk and was taken to hospital.

A 24-year-old year old man was shot to death near Salmon Arm in what police say was a targeted attack.

The man was gunned down just after midnight as he drove along a road about 80 kilometres east of Kamloops.

RCMP say it appears someone in another vehicle opened fire.

No arrests have been made and investigators say it's too early to tell if the slaying is linked to gangs or drugs. THE CANADIAN PRESS

B.C. boy who vanished six years ago set to spend weekend with dad

Abducted at age three, the now 10-year-old to be reunited with father who had custody when son disappeared

A B.C. father is counting down the days until he can be reunited with his son in Arizona, a boy he last saw almost seven years ago before the three-year-old was abducted.

Garrett Taylor said he will fly south tomorrow to meet his son, Valor, and bring him back to Kamloops on Saturday, or early next week.

When the boy vanished in December 2004, Taylor had custody of him.

After years of tracking Valor's mother, Taylor got the news Monday that Jamie Howell was arrested in Arizona, picked up at a laundromat in Chandler, outside of Phoenix, by officers investigating a complaint of disorderly conduct.

Taylor told Kamloops radio station CHNL he didn't immediately believe it was his son when he was first contacted.

"To me, it was just another sighting. In the past I got excited and then was very, very heartbroken to realize nothing was going to happen because of it."

Chandler Police Det. David Ramer said officers ran a background check and found Howell was wanted in Canada for alleged parental abduction.

He said the 10-year-old boy is in good shape, and showed no signs of abuse.

"He was kind of withdrawn and aloof when it was first taking place with officers. Currently he's in Child Protective Services, our local agency, and they're working with the father to reunite them," Ramer said.

Taylor said that after Jamie Howell left Canada with the boy he found her in Spokane, Wash., where her mother lives. Howell apparently fled again before being served by police.

E. coli origin remains a mystery for authorities

The number of people hit by a European outbreak of food-borne bacterial infections is one-third higher than previously known and a number of patients suffer from a potentially deadly complication that can shut down kidneys, officials said yesterday.

The death toll rose to 17, with German authorities reporting that an 84-year-old woman died on Sunday.

Medical authorities have not uncovered the mystery behind the outbreak: Why the strain of the E. coli bacteria is causing cases of hemolytic uremic syndrome, which attacks the kidneys and can cause seizures, strokes and comas.

The outbreak has hit at least nine European countries but virtually all of the sick people live in or recently travelled to Germany. Germany's national health agency said 1,534 people had been infected by the deadly strain of bacteria.

High morale for NATO crew

Libyan mission supports arms embargo, no-fly zone and civilian protection ◐ Sea King helicopter provides critical information without any mechanical issues

JENNIFER TAPLIN
@METRONEWS.CA

HMCS Charlottetown has spent the spring clearing anti-ship mines and taking fire off the coast of Libya.

The ship sailed from Halifax on March 2 as Canada's contribution to the NATO mission. Operations have focused on the town of Misrata, recently surrounded by enemy forces.

In April, a pro-Gadhafi force attacked the harbour with small boats and laid anti-ship mines. The Charlottetown was called in to help on May 5. "Our job was to protect the mine-clearance vessels from attacks from the shore," said Cmdr. Craig Skjerpen in an interview yesterday.

JENNIFER TAPLIN/METRO

▶ HMCS Charlottetown, on patrol in the background, is framed by a Belgian ship in May. The Charlottetown is the Canadian naval contribution to the NATO mission in Libya.

On May 12, the ship was fired upon at night. The Charlottetown and other NATO vessels were chasing several small attack boats away when large-calibre machine-gun ammunition was fired at them. The Charlottetown returned fire "very professionally and quickly" Skjerpen said. "Since then, the crew's morale has remained very high and they really understand they're having a positive effect on what's happening on the ground and on the sea."

Mission possible

- NATO and its partners decided yesterday in Brussels to extend their mission for another 90 days. "This decision sends a clear message to the Gadhafi regime: We are determined to continue our operation to protect the people of Libya," said NATO Secretary-General Anders Fogh Rasmussen.
- When the HMCS Charlottetown left Halifax in March, no return date was given and Cmdr. Craig Skjerpen said that hasn't changed. "Things change, but right now it's up to six months," he said.

$25K bail in new hotel sex case

- Egyptian businessman allegedly assaulted maid
- Second incident in two weeks at a New York hotel

A businessman and former chairman of a major Egyptian bank charged with sexually abusing a housekeeper at a luxury Manhattan hotel is being held on $25,000 US bail.

Mahmoud Abdel Salam Omar has been ordered to hand over his passport because he is considered a flight risk.

Authorities say the businessman, who is in his 70s, attacked the maid at The Pierre hotel, near Central Park and Fifth Avenue.

The hotel said it suspended the housekeeping supervisor for not immediately reporting the alleged assault. Police were called as quickly as possible.

One more liftoff before NASA bows out of the shuttle program

NASA's 30-year shuttle program inched closer to the end yesterday.

It wrapped up its next-to-last mission and moved Atlantis to the launch pad for next month's final flight.

Endeavour and its six astronauts returned to Earth after more than two weeks in space, gliding down the runway one last time during a middle-of-the-night landing.

A few kilometres away, Atlantis reached the launch pad at Kennedy Space Center for the grand finale in five weeks.

NASA is leaving the Earth-to-orbit business to focus on expeditions to asteroids and Mars.

Private companies hope to pick up the slack for cargo and crew hauls to the space station.

Until then, Americans will continue hitching rides to the station aboard Russian Soyuz capsules — at a cost of millions of dollars a seat.

Meanwhile at NASA, thousands of layoffs loom.

"We're going to look upon this final mission as a celebration of all that the space shuttle has accomplished over its 30-year lifespan."

Sadness mingles with joy as Atlantis moves in Moving Atlantis to the launch pad as Endeavour touched down helped temper the sadness so many are feeling about the shuttle program's end, officials said.

"We're in the process of transition now, and it's going to be awkward," said Atlantis astronaut Rex Walheim.

But it will be hard to outdo the shuttle, he said as Atlantis rolled to the pad behind him.

"I mean, how can you beat that? An airplane sitting on the side of a rocket. It's absolutely stunning."

Meanwhile, Endeavour will head to a Los Angeles science centre.

McGuinty won't apologize

- Ontario Liberals not calling G20 public inquiry
- Toronto Police Services Board review begins

Premier Dalton McGuinty says public hearings into police actions during the G20 in Toronto will help government understand what to do going forward.

But McGuinty won't apologize for the secret law the Liberal government passed granting police powers to detain and arrest people during the international summit.

The premier also says he will not call a public inquiry into police actions during the G20.

McGuinty says he's acknowledged the government didn't manage the secret G20 law as well as it should have.

More than 1,100 people were arrested and detained.

McGuinty has said it's up to Prime Minister Stephen Harper to call any public inquiry into arrests during the G20 weekend.

Meanwhile, three days of hearings into the G20 organized by Toronto Police Services Board started last night, billed as a chance for the public to offer insight into the role civilian oversight should play in policing major events.

Heroin clinics safe: Study

Sites allow addicts to inject drugs cleanly and with nurse's supervision

Heroin-related debris, like discarded needles, dropped 46 per cent in a Montreal neighbourhood after an injection clinic opened there in 2005, according to a recent study.

Researchers are urging the Conservative government to pay attention to these findings and reconsider its opposition to such facilities.

The study published yesterday in the Canadian Journal of Public Health says the establishment of an experimental prescription medical heroin clinic did not have a negative effect on the neighbourhood. It says fear that more drug addicts would be drawn to an area serviced by a clinic were unfounded.

"We certainly show that it is not the case. We shouldn't say no to these types of clinics on the basis of the fact that we will attract people disturbing the neighbourhood," said Serge Brochu, a Universite de Montreal criminologist.

The study follows another one by Brochu and other researchers, published in 2009, which looked at crime patterns around clinics in Montreal and Vancouver before and after they opened.

PM's stance

- Analysis is being released as the Supreme Court of Canada considers closing a Vancouver safe-injection clinic.
- Prime Minister Stephen Harper said the national drug strategy is based on prevention and treatment. Conservatives say safe injection sites fosters addiction.

Consumer debt rising: Study

- Canada's top central banker warned consumers to rein in borrowing
- Consumer spending, meanwhile, slowed down in first quarter of 2011

Canadians' average non-mortgage debt grew 4.5 per cent to $25,597 in the first quarter compared to a year earlier, signalling that consumers aren't necessarily clamping down on borrowing even as they rein in spending.

Total debt per consumer, including credit cards, car loans and lines of credit but excluding mortgages, was up from $24,497 in the same quarter of 2010, according to a quarterly analysis by TransUnion.

Total consumer debt rose in all provinces but increased the most in Quebec and Newfoundland and Labrador, with debt rising by 7.8 per cent in both provinces, while British Columbians had the highest average consumer debt at $36,649.

"Our first quarter data shows a continued increase in the total debt per consumer, although the trend still remains modest compared to the double-digit, pre-recession levels," said Thomas Higgins, TransUnion's vice president of analytics and decisioning.

Don't 'suit up,' salarymen told

The Japanese government wants the country's suit-loving salarymen to be bold this summer. Ditch the stuffy jacket and tie. And for the good of a country facing a power crunch, go light and casual.

Japan's "Super Cool Biz" campaign kicked off yesterday with a government-sponsored fashion show in Tokyo featuring outfits appropriate for the office yet cool enough to endure the sweltering heat.

This summer may be especially brutal. The loss of the Fukushima Dai-ichi nuclear power plant, crippled by the March 11 tsunami, means electricity could be in short supply around Tokyo during hot days.

To prevent blackouts, the government is asking companies to cut electricity usage by 15 per cent, and set room temperatures to 28 C.

Toyota Prius' faulty steering leads to recall

Toyota Canada says it's recalling about 940 first-generation Prius hybrid cars across the country for faulty steering caused by a nut that may come loose.

The automaker says the recall affects Prius models made from 2001 through 2003. The move is part of a global recall of 106,000 Prius hybrids.

The single minor accident suspected of being related to the problem was reported in the United States, according to Toyota Motor Corp.

The latest recall from Toyota, which has taken a hit to its reputation from massive recalls worldwide, affects 48,000 Prius vehicles in Japan, starting with the first Prius models that went on sale in 1997, and those manufactured through 2003.

It also affects 58,000 vehicles sold abroad, including 52,000 Prius cars sold from 2001 through 2003 in the U.S., some 1,200 in Great Britain, and 800 in Germany, company spokesman Paul Nolasco said.

Toyota says loose nuts in the electric-power steering can cause the vehicle, if operated over a long time, to steer with too much force.

▶ In this Dec. 10, 1997 file photo, visitors examine an early Prius model at Toyota Motor Corp.'s biggest showroom in Tokyo. Toyota recalled 106,000 Prius cars yesterday.

The problem can be fixed by putting in better nuts and will take about four hours, it said.

Twenty-one complaints were received that may be caused by the problem, but there were no accidents, the automaker said.

‘I screwed up,’ says Google’s ex-chief

Co-founder Larry Page, who replaced Schmidt as CEO, has made social networking a top priority

PAUL SAKUMA/THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

▶ If he had a another chance, former Google CEO Eric Schmidt says he would focus on challenging Facebook.

Former Google CEO Eric Schmidt regards his inaction on the competitive threat posed by Facebook as his biggest mistake during the decade he was running the Internet search leader.

In a late Tuesday appearance at the All Things Digital conference, Schmidt said he started writing memos four years ago to emphasize the need for Google to develop more ways to connect friends and family online the way Facebook does on its online social network.

But Schmidt said he and other managers didn’t do enough to challenge Facebook. “I screwed up,” Schmidt said.

Google co-founder Larry Page replaced Schmidt as CEO April 4. Since then, Page has made social networking one of the company’s top priorities.

Schmidt still works closely with Page as Google’s executive chairman.

BUSINESS CONFIDENCE

High oil price has an impact

Canada’s small businesses were substantially less confident in May than in April, according to a monthly survey by their chief lobby group.

The Canadian Federation of Independent Business says its national index of business confidence dropped to 66.9 points in May from 70.7 in April.

But there were big regional differences, with businesses in oil-producing provinces showing much more optimism than in other parts of the country.

Business owners in Alberta were the most confident, with a reading of 76.

Saskatchewan, British Columbia, Manitoba and Newfoundland and Labrador weren’t far behind, with readings of at least 70.

The national confidence index was dragged down, however, by businesses in Ontario, Quebec, New Brunswick, Nova Scotia and Prince Edward Island.

“The price of oil is writing much of the story,” said CFIB vice-president and chief economist Ted Mallett.

The group says when the economy is growing, its 100-point index usually falls between 65 and 75 — putting May’s numbers at the lower end of that range.

The May 2011 findings are based on 853 responses, collected from a stratified random sample of CFIB members, to a controlled-access web survey.

Findings are statistically accurate to plus or minus 3.4 percentage points, 19 times in 20.

HE SAYS ...

JOHN MAZEROLLE
METRO

Brace yourself: It's House of Commons time! The backbenches are polished, the little woman in the sign language bubble is limber, and CPAC has unveiled kickin' new camera angles that promise to make the 41st session of Parliament the best yet!

It's clear from my fan mail that readers are caught up in the high drama of the House of Commons, which reopens today. It's clear because no one is sending me fan mail.

And no wonder! If I know my politics, this will be the most exciting parliamentary session since Joe Clark defended himself against a man with a long knife, who was stopped from entering the bedrooms of the nation by a pirouetting Pierre Trudeau. The Avro Arrow was also involved somehow.

"If I know my politics, this will be the most exciting parliamentary session since Joe Clark defended himself against a man with a long knife ..."

The central issue this month will be the transition to Conservative majority from minority, a story that we in the media predicted with an incredibly consistent level of inaccuracy.

Nobody saw this Parliament coming. But is our face red? No. Because we in the media have shorter attention spans than goldfish. Who has time to look back on our mistakes when we're so busy randomly guessing the future?

With that in mind, here's what to expect from the summer session:

THE BUDGET: It's basically the same as the one tabled before the election call, except for something labelled Secret Explosive Majority Win Conspiracy Item, which well-placed sources (they're near a telephone) say involves some sort of countdown clock and a lot of stifled giggles from Tony Clement.

HIDDEN AGENDA: Prime Minister Stephen Harper has buried an agenda he purchased deep in the budget, because he bought a leather-bound $79 one when he could have gone with the normal $18.95 version and he is embarrassed about it.

ORANGE CRUSH: Soft drink being demanded in the House of Commons by the incredibly young NDP MPs, many of whom weren't even born when Glee started.

SMALLER BLOC: With only four seats, the Bloc Québécois will stop demanding separation. Instead, they just want open, honest communication, some alone time and maybe a date night on Mondays. And would it kill Canada to say "I love you" every once in a while?

LICKING THEIR SELF-INFLICTED WOUNDS: The Liberals plan to put their internal struggles behind them and finally come together as a mere seven separate factions willing to stab their fellow members for the good of the party.

THE MEDIA: We're going to get something right this year. I guarantee it.

Worth mentioning

OTTAWA. Canadian governments head off in all directions when it comes to tackling climate change, a new tally of provincial and federal environment policies shows.

The end result is a disorganized, inefficient approach to greenhouse-gas reduction that won't allow Canada to meet its goals, say researchers at the Conference Board of Canada.

Len Coad, director of energy and environment at the Conference Board, said his team went through each federal and provincial jurisdiction and tried to add up all the policies to measure how close Canada will come to meeting its emission-reduction targets.

Coad said that while most governments have climate-action plans that focus on the biggest emitters in their purview, they don't include concrete goals or detailed analysis that will drive results.

Plus, he says governments don't talk to each other — or to the public for that matter — hampering their ability to work together to reduce emissions.

Politicians can be left or right, red or blue — hot or not.

A new website lets Britons rank their lawmakers' sex appeal.

The site, www.sexymp.co.uk, asks visitors to choose between two pictured legislators, with the votes compiled into a fast-changing overall ranking.

Conservative legislator Penny Mordaunt led the female politicians yesterday, while fellow Tory Jake Berry was ranked the sexiest man.

The site's creator, reality TV star Francis Boulle, defended it as a "fun and memorable" way for people to get to know their politicians.

Most lawmakers seemed to take it in good humour.

Jim Shannon, briefly ranked least sexy among 648 lawmakers, told the BBC he hadn't been elected for his looks, but because voters "know I am a worker and will get the job done."

It's the age of the remix — what better time to bring back the mother of all shows?

Mom's the Word: Remixed is a mash up of two previous Arts Club productions: Mom's the Word and Mom's the Word 2: Unhinged. Both had wildly successful runs here and abroad and have been seen by more than 1.25 million people on four continents.

"The return of the creators of the Mom's the Word series to the newly reconfigured Revue Stage reminds me of how so many things travel in circles," says Arts Club artistic managing director, Bill Millerd.

"The original Mom's the Word played in this theatre in 1995 and since that time, the show in its various versions has played across the country and overseas in Australia and Great Britain, including London's West End."

Remixed, which premiered at the Arts Club in 2009, returns due to popular demand. And so our favourite mom's reunite to share their true tales of the ups and downs of parenthood, from toddler to terrible twos to troublesome teens.

It is, as they say, a show for anyone who has ever had a mother.

Mom's the Word: Remixed, starring Jill Daum, Beverley Elliott, Alison Kelly, Barbara Pollard, Deborah Williams, runs until July 23 at the Revue Stage on Granville Island.

LYKKE LI

WELCOME TO 'MY WORLD,' SAYS THE SWEDISH CHANTEUSE

PAT HEALY
SCENE@METRONEWS.CA
METRO WORLD NEWS IN BOSTON

There is something playful about the sorrow of Lykke Li.

In the song Sadness Is a Blessing, she delivers the phrase that gives her latest album its title of Wounded Rhymes, but in a ringing chorus she sings, "sadness is my boyfriend."

Elsewhere on the album she imbues a song like Unrequited Love with a pining innocence, like it's a song from the early '60s, and immediately follows it with the sexy drive of Get Some, where she's going out on the prowl, singing, "I'm your prostitute, you're gonna get some."

In conversation, the Swedish singer is serious about her art, but also willing to laugh at herself.

One thing that comes across on Wounded Rhymes is the importance of the sequence. The songs flow naturally. How much thought went in?
It is a lot of thought and work into that. I actually had to leave out songs because I couldn't fit them into my "world."

It's about balance. Just like cooking, you follow your instinct but at some point you've got to ease off the salt.

Your song, I Follow Rivers, appeared in a Glee episode. Did you ever think something so mainstream — and all about happiness — would celebrate a song from an album like Wounded Rhymes?
There is no business like show business, and sometimes even a melancholic person like me has to have a laugh and collect some stamps for the books.

Glee is so far away from me as a person and artist, so it was more about me seeing the humour in some huge American show singing my song about a really destructive love. With that said, I haven't actually ever watched the show and don't know much about it except that my gay friends love it.

Indie rock trio is 'more comfortable'

PAT HEALY
SCENE@METRONEWS.CA
METRO WORLD NEWS IN BOSTON

HANDOUT

Arcade Fire. Broken Social Scene. In the past 10 years, Canadian bands, packed with 10-plus members, have been known for having more people onstage than people in the audience listening.

This isn't the case for the Rural Alberta Advantage.

In fact, the trio is even multi-tasking to create a sound like there are more players. Keyboardist Amy Cole recently bought a pedal bass to play with her feet to fill in the low end.

"It's been a little weird co-ordinating that with other instruments," says Cole. "We've been practicing it a lot actually, getting ready for tour."

Their recently released second album, Departing, has been garnering favourable reviews for its heartfelt immediacy.

There have been comparisons to Bright Eyes and Arcade Fire, but especially indie rock superheroes Neutral Milk Hotel, mostly due to singer Nils Edenloff's voice.

"I think Nils' vocal similarity cannot be denied," says Cole.

"Honestly, it's flattering to be in the same sentence as a band like that. At the same time, I hope we have our own identity."

The band does seem to have found themselves in Departing, garnering good reviews all around.

"I think because we were more confident in our sound," says Cole, "we were kind of able to make these songs in more of a voice that is a unified voice."

Rehab 'last chance' for Winehouse

Source says doctors urge troubled singer to stop drinking altogether
Friends, family concerned about severity of Winehouse's situation

Amy Winehouse's latest trip to rehab hasn't been fun, according to the Sun, as doctors at London's the Priory treatment facility have reportedly warned the troubled singer to quit drinking all together.

"It's the last chance saloon for Amy," a source says. "Doctors have come down hard on her because of the severity of her situation. It's a harsh reality but she had to hear it."

At least Winehouse has the support of her father, Mitch Winehouse, and boyfriend, Reg Traviss, according to the source.

"They are worried about her. Mitch has been down this road before during Amy's drug addiction. But she is there of her own accord this time and wants to sort herself out."

Halle Berry heading back to TV?

Halle Berry may be returning to her small-screen roots, as a television drama project with the Oscar-winner attached is reportedly being shopped around to HBO and Showtime by Dreamworks TV, according Deadline Hollywood.

The series, called Higher Learning, would star Berry as a college professor and would be the actress' first time on the small screen since 2000's HBO movie Introducing Dorothy Dandridge, for which she won an Emmy and a Golden Globe.

Maria could profit from divorce

Divorce negotiations are reportedly "moving forward" between Arnold Schwarzenegger and Maria Shriver, as Schwarzenegger has hired his own heavyweight divorce attorney, Bob Kaufman, according to TMZ.

The pair have a prenuptial agreement from when they first married, but given the age of the agreement as well as Schwarzenegger's indiscretions that have recently come to light, Shriver may still walk away with half of their estimated $400 million, legal experts speculate.

McDreamy leaving Grey's?

Patrick Dempsey has had just about enough of playing doctor on Grey's Anatomy, telling Italian Vogue that the eighth season of the medical soap will be it. "It's gonna be my last,"

Dempsey says. "I do not know what's going to happen to the other characters, but for me it's done. (Leaving will be) bittersweet because it's been a great part of my life. But I can't see me doing it anymore."

His rep was quick to do damage control after the quote got out, explaining to Us Weekly: "He was referring to the fact that his contract is up at the end of next season and we have no idea what the future holds."

Lively denies nude photos

Blake Lively is busy trying to quash her first nude photo scandal, as her rep insists pictures that recently leaked online are not of the Gossip Girl star.

"The photos of Blake Lively, which have just surfaced on various websites including Perez Hilton and Zap2it.com, are 100 per cent fake," her rep says in a statement.

"Blake has never taken nude photos of herself. Blake will pursue legal action against the publication which initially published these photographs and any other outlets that republish them in any manner."

GO AHEAD, MAKE A SPLASH

Sure those pear-versus apple and curvy-versus-curveless shape charts are important But what if you actually have to move in your suit?

MARK NOLAN/GETTY IMAGES

Sure this looks great on the runway, but will it truly cover up all your bits when you bust a move on the beach?

The runway swimsuits and magazine-shoot bikinis, with their thin straps, triangle bottoms, decorative hardware and high ratio of white fabrics, make for great photos — especially on the glamazon models.

But some other women, perhaps those who trudge across the sand carrying a beach chair or who use swimming as a form of fitness, like two-piece suits, too.

Designer Nanette Lepore, a bikini wearer and lap swimmer, says she personally tests all the swimsuit styles in her collection. "I'm aiming for across-the-board fit. That means higher bottoms and built-up tops. My friends ask, 'How did most bottoms get so skimpy, anyway?'"

But just because you don't want a string bikini doesn't limit you to dowdy, Lepore says. "I think cute, retro styling keeps them sexy."

No one is accusing a Katy Perry-type or even a Dita Von Teese lookalike, with pinup looks that evoke old Hollywood swimsuit glamour in a flirty, high-waist skirt bottom, of being frumpy or boring, says Amy Tara Koch, a Chicago-based style expert.

"To me swimwear 101 is about the four Cs: compression, coverups, construction and quality. Ok that's a Q, but it makes a C sound."

AMY TARA KOCH, STYLE EXPERT

It's a win-win, she says, because it's a feminine look with little chance of a wardrobe malfunction.

"You need to think about how it looks and performance. ... There definitely is a middle of the road," Koch says.

Modern swimsuit manufacturers have innovative fabrics at their disposal that offer softness, control and colour that lasts even after many cycles in the sun, sand and pool, according to Koch. She also notes that many of the lingerie brands that specialize in shapewear, such as Spanx, now make swimsuits.

Koch, Lepore and Kaylin Richardson, director of sales at Panache Swimwear, all emphasize fit over any other factor in choosing a swimsuit, especially a two-piece. It's important in a one-piece, too, but there's usually more leeway, they say.

(They all also say white is a risky colour choice for anyone who gets wet — no matter the fabric or lining.)

How many women do you know who are different sizes on the bottom and top? asks Richardson. Probably most of them.

Panache makes its bathing suits based on bra sizes. "The idea is a properly fitted top — more of a custom fit," Richardson explains. "If you're chasing after kids, you don't have to feel self-conscious about a possible spill."

Swimwear tips from Kaylin Richardson, director of sales at Panache Swimwear

- When you're trying a swimsuit on in the dressing room, be sure to move around.
- An underwire top is going to give the support of a bra, where a triangle top won't. Thick tank straps are another possibility.
- For the truly active woman — think beach volleyball player or a boater — the tankini should be seriously considered

Kate Middleton's wedding hairstylist on that famous demi chignon, building block tiaras, and lily of the valley

ROMINA MCGUINNESS
METRO WORLD NEWS

Getting your hair to look its best on your wedding day is a small but crucial part of the overall look. You want a style that will look effortless and chic, and yet be sturdy enough to withstand, say, an unexpected gust of wind or your first dance without diverting the attention away from your dress. Yes, it's possible. Kate Middleton's hair guru, Richard Ward, explains.

GETTY IMAGES

▶ Say yes to Kate Middleton's demi chignon, but skip the tiara.

Try a demi chignon

"The up/down demi chignon really is the best of both worlds," Ward says. "Wear it all the way down and your hair will be all over your face. But wear it all the way up and you look too strict. (The demi chignon) is a timeless look that you can pull off at both the ceremony and the party."

Keep the curls lovely and loose

"No matter how well curls have been done they will eventually drop. For long lasting, lovely loose curls use big rollers set into wet hair. This will last as your hair dries into the shape," he explains. "The worst thing to do is use tight and heavy tongs or heating rollers as neither will last."

Choose your hair ornamentation wisely

"Tiaras are really popular at the moment," he says, stating the obvious. "I'd recommend keeping your hair away from your face if you're going to try to pull that look off. Kate's looked amazing but the problem is when people wear a tiara that' s more like a crown, it all ends up looking like a building block," he says. Flowers are a safer bet. "They're the ultimate hair accessory. Make a halo using lily of the valley buds. If you want to jazz this up at night just swap the flowers for some diamante studs, as seen on Pippa (Middleton)."

Start a mood board and practice, practice, practice

"Create a board with clippings that reflect the style you want to go for and show it to your hairdresser. All brides should practice their hairstyle until they are 100 per cent happy. You don't want any surprises on the day," Ward says.

Pick a good hair spray and let your mother have her say

"Keep your mother in the loop throughout as her feedback is priceless. On the day, allow for at least 90 minutes to get your hair done," he says. "An easy trap to fall into is to add on loads of hairspray to make sure that your hair stays in place but what you should be doing is lightly applying a fine spray. Assign a friend to help you freshen your hair on the night, whether its re-toning, blow drying or straightening."

Consider your age

"If you're over 35, pulling your hair completely away from the face can be very ageing. Also, too much volume on the side will stiffen your face. Copy Kate and allow your hair to gently sweep across your forehead. A great soft look that is also perfect for shorter hair is to have your hair down and slightly twisted and then tightened at sides."

Don't go overboard

"You'll want to feel special — it's your day, we get it — but your husband-to-be should recognize you as you walk down the aisle. A wedding is a respectful affair, avoid going overboard on anything."

The designer duo

From school to stardom, the talented team behind Proenza Schouler have stuck to their creative formula

CHRIS YOUNG/THE CANADIAN PRESS

Designers Jack McCollough, left, and Lazaro Hernandez

Abandoning respective plans to pursue pre-med and glassblowing are paying off for Lazaro Hernandez and Jack McCollough.

The design duo behind Proenza Schouler has seen their careers surge since founding their New York-based womenswear and accessories brand in 2002. Their label's moniker is drawn from their mothers' maiden names.

It was a partnership forged while studying at the Parsons School of Design. It was there they established a fashionable first, deciding to collaborate on a joint senior collection. The decision paid dividends when the entire collection was snapped up by Barneys.

While the days of design school are behind them, the designers, both 32, have done little to tinker with the creative formula that has helped fuel their steady ascent within the industry where they've earned acclaim for their sophisticated luxury looks infused with a youthful sensibility.

"In terms of a lot of things, we're a little OCD. We're a little micromanagey. We like to make sure we're fully involved in everything."
JACK MCCOLLOUGH

"I think as we've kind of added new things, shoes, bags ... (the brand has) evolved, but it's still fundamentally kind of based on the same principles in the beginning when we were working together," said McCollough in an interview steps from The Room at the Bay's flagship downtown Toronto store which carries their collections.

"We still kind of sit down and go away and we'll sketch for a bunch of days and the process leading up to the show is still pretty much the same."

While they have an "army of interns" and dedicated support team, McCollough said they continue to work in a kind of "insular process," and in many ways stick to themselves.

"In terms of a lot of things, we're a little OCD. We're a little micromanagey," he said, as Hernandez let out a hearty laugh. "We like to make sure we're fully involved in everything."

McCollough said he and Hernandez were bookending their brief Canadian visit with stays at their Massachusetts farm sketching their upcoming spring collection.

It's not uncommon for the cutting-edge design team to soak in a little inspiration for future designs while temporarily away from the spotlight.

"Most of our collections are autobiographical in a way," said Hernandez. "You want to know what we're up to, what we've been doing? Just look at our collections." THE CANADIAN PRESS

Grilling with international appeal

Fire up the grill to make these tasty chicken gyros

THE CANADIAN PRESS HO/ ON THE GRILL CHICKEN AND SIDES COOKBOOK

▶ Skip the tired burgers in favour of gyros with tzatziki.

Preparation:

1. In bowl, whisk yogurt, mint, oil, lemon juice, salt and pepper. Add tomato and cucumber; stir to combine.
2. In bowl, whisk marinade ingredients. Add chicken and coat evenly. Marinate for 30 minutes at room temp.
3. Prepare grill for direct cooking over medium heat (180 to 230 C/350 to 450 F).
4. Brush onion slices on both sides with oil. Remove chicken from bowl, letting herbs cling to chicken. Discard marinade. Grill chicken and onion slices over direct medium heat with lid closed as much as possible, until meat is firm to touch, juices run clear and onion is tender, 6 minutes, turning once. Remove from grill.
5. Warm flatbreads on grill over direct medium heat until lightly charred, about 2 minutes, turning once or twice. Layer some chicken, sauce and onion inside flatbreads and serve warm or a room temperature.

THE CANADIAN PRESS/ WEBER'S ON THE GRILL CHICKEN & SIDES BY JAMIE PURVIANCE (2010)

Decorate like a millionaire

Creating a classic-looking room without breaking the bank. A little time and creativity is all it takes

DESIGN CENTRE

KARL LOHNES
HOME@METRONEWS.CA

Although trends can be fun to learn about; and even implement into our decor; always keeping up with them can be exhausting and expensive.

There are certain decor choices that never seem to go out of style. From a splash of animal print, to classic wood tones and fabric choices, anyone can achieve the look of a millionaire's home without having to break the bank.

Here's a list of affordable classic decor choices that are fresh and timeless.

Floors

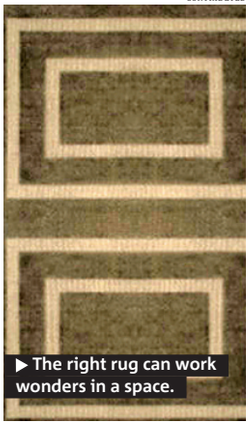
Look for silk-like rugs made of viscose at places like Walmart and Home Depot. Choose tone-on-tone, simply designed rugs as they tend to have a more classic look and will last longer.

Tiles are great for updating a kitchen, bath or foyer area. Choose classic slate or marble-look porcelain tiles; it's hard to tell the porcelain versions over the real thing and they are much less expensive than the real thing.

Want the look of old-world floors? Consider laminate floors that are reminiscent of herringbone oak floors in Paris.

Laminate is also durable, easy to install and is considered a "floating" floor that makes it an excellent candidate to for floors in condos.

CONTRIBUTED



▶ The right rug can work wonders in a space.

Drapes

Faux silk drapery panels are aplenty at the big-box retailer stores. If choosing pre-made drapery panels then splurge and buy the next size up as the more the fabric hangs the more luxurious the windows will look. Got drapes already?

Beef them up to look more lush by adding an inexpensive material (like polar fleece) sewn as an additional lining; your drapery panels will instantly look fuller and more luxurious.

Upholstered furniture

If you are going to have the rich luxurious looks in your decor scheme then you have to start thinking like a millionaire.

Although someone who can afford to spend a lot of money will have good quality, they also want their decorating investments to last; and that's where choosing neutral-coloured furnishings come in.

Plain neutral coloured fabrics like cotton twill, chenille or synthetic linen do not have to cost a lot, yet when teamed up with a simple colour like cream, taupe or grey they can look classic for a long time. Add dashes of a trendier colour with pillows, glass vases and candles.

CONTRIBUTED

▶ New linen pillows and a sixties glass vase can add impact and personality to a room.

Wood furniture

When investing in wooden furniture pieces for your space consider choosing a medium-dark walnut or mahogany stain finish. These are the two classics that will never be out of style.

Got an old dresser from grandma's attic? Have it refinished with a dark mahogany stain, add bright chrome pulls and top it with a piece of honed marble.

Be weary of trendy wood tones such as espresso or driftwood colours; they will date themselves with a few years and are often not of good enough quality to update with a future stain finish.

Accessories

I believe that every accessory you bring into your space should have a story (or at least look that way).

Choosing unique looking items will add character and personality to a space.

Places like Homesense are great for interesting world-designed items like decorative wooden and shell-covered boxes, glass art objects and large coffee table books.

Yard sales and flea markets are another great place to look for inexpensive treasures. In order not to make your place look like a flea market itself, choose accessories in colour ways to keep a common denominator in the space.

For instance a turquoise 1940s lamp or sixties glass vase can add impact to a room.

CONTRIBUTED

▶ Consider choosing a classic medium-dark walnut or mahogany stain finish for wooden furniture.

Designer classics

These are items that designers and style-makers scoop up at the flea markets and decor stores.

- Skin rugs: For less that a few hundred dollars you can have a cow skin rug which has been a designer classic for years.
- Needlepoint pillows: These look amazing on a sofa or at the top of bed.
- Rose bowl vases: These are great in many sizes, and can hold flowers, fruit or candles.
- Black and white photos: Framed with a simple black wood moulding and white matting, these can look timeless leaning against a fireplace mantle or hung in a hallway.

Every second counts

With the clock running down on a scoreless Game 1, Torres beats Thomas to ensure victory

MATT KIELTYKA
@METRONEWS.CA

CANUCKS	BRUINS
1	0

Vancouver Canucks fans endured nearly 60 minutes of nail-biting tension only to explode in the dying seconds of the game thanks to a Raffi Torres goal.

The sold-out Rogers Arena absolutely erupted when Torres poked the puck past a diving Tim Thomas with 18 seconds left in the game, putting the Canucks up 1-0 against the Boston Bruins and winning the first game of the Stanley Cup final.

"It was huge, it was just as exciting as an overtime goal," said Canucks netminder Roberto Luongo. "There wasn't a lot of room out there and, at one point, I thought we'd be playing all night."

Torres took advantage of a blue-line stand by Ryan Kesler, who kept the puck in the zone late to create the Jannik Hansen pass to Torres.

The gritty checker was struggling to find an NHL team last summer and revelled in being the hero of Game 1.

"It was a long summer but everything happens for a reason," said Torres. "I'm in a very fortunate situation right now. It's such a ride."

The late fireworks ended a game-long goaltending duel between Thomas and Luongo, who stopped 33 and 36 shots respectively — though the Canucks struck the iron twice.

Fans taking in Game 1 got off to a boisterous start and helped the energized Canucks get three early scoring chances.

But once the Bruins composed themselves, the game turned into a tight-checking, penalty-filled affair.

As the game wore on a nervous energy descended on the rink, as fans realized that a single shot would likely decide the outcome.

Despite 5-on-3 power-play opportunities, the teams went a combined 0-19 on the man advantage.

The game got ugly too, with Patrice Bergeron accusing Alexandre Burrows of biting his finger in a scuffle at the end of the first period, and Canucks defenceman Dan Hamhuis leaving the game in the second after his hip check on Milan Lucic led to another violent scrimmage.

For the Bruins, it seemed like the Canucks and their fans were being lulled right into a trap as they kept the game tight and scoreless.

"I thought we played a real good road game, to be honest with you," said Bruins coach Claude Julien. "For the first two periods I was pretty pleased, it just got away from us."

For his performance, Luongo earned the first opening-game shutout in a Stanley Cup final since his idol, Grant Fuhr, did it for the Edmonton Oilers in 1984.

The series resumes Saturday at Rogers Arena for Game 2, before heading to Boston next week.

▶ The rebuilding Raptors have decided to start anew at the head coach position by moving Jay Triano into the team's front office.

Raps shuffle Triano out of coach's role

First ever Canadian NBA coach will now serve as assistant to Colangelo

The Toronto Raptors are making a head coaching change after finishing with the third-worst record in the NBA this past season.

The team will not pick up the option on Jay Triano's contract for next season. Instead, he will be retained as a special assistant to president and general manager Bryan Colangelo.

The search for a new head coach will commence immediately.

"I have great respect for Jay Triano both as a person and as a basketball mind," Colangelo said in a release yesterday. "Jay deserves tremendous credit for developing our young players this past season and our most recent win-loss record does not appropriately reflect his many positive contributions to this organization."

Triano served as an assistant to three coaches before being named interim head coach in December 2008 following the dismissal of Sam Mitchell. The interim tag was later removed and Triano signed a three-year deal in May 2009.

He guided the Raptors to a 22-60 mark this past season and finished with an 87-142 record as head coach.

"This was a difficult decision to make," Colangelo said. "But after almost three full seasons of observation and evaluation I believe that bringing in a new voice as head coach will accelerate the progress we are looking to make in the coming years."

Triano, a native of Niagara Falls, Ont., joined Lenny Wilkens' Raptors coaching staff for the 2002-03 season.

"I am grateful to the organization for the opportunity to be a head coach in the NBA," Triano said. "I am proud of the work that I and the coaching staff have done with our young players and feel confident we have laid the foundation for a team that will continue to improve.

"I look forward in assisting Bryan to deliver a championship team to Toronto."

The announcement came two weeks after Colangelo agreed to a multi-year contract extension.

Talent void

Jay Triano became the victim of the Raptors' talent deficiency after Chris Bosh left last summer to join the Miami Heat.

- Andrea Bargnani has yet to step into the void left by Bosh on the young squad.
- Triano spent six years as head coach of Canada's national team, leading Canada to a seventh-place finish at the 2000 Olympics.

FRONT OFFICE

NHL to take 'fresh look' at discipline

A new man will be handing out the discipline in the NHL.

Colin Campbell is stepping down as the league's head disciplinarian and is being replaced by former player Brendan Shanahan.

NHL commissioner Gary Bettman made the announcement yesterday, saying the move was part of a reorganization of the league's head office.

"Both Colin and I believe it's time to take a fresh look at the standards that we use," Bettman said prior to Game 1 of the Stanley Cup final.

"If we are going to move to harsher discipline, that change needs to send a clear message and we think it would probably be best to do on a clean slate."

There had been some criticism that there were inconsistencies in the suspensions Campbell had handed out this season, especially in the area of head shots.

Bettman praised Campbell's efforts and said it was not a demotion.

"It would be unfair, inappropriate and simply wrong to suggest this reorgnaizaiton in any way is a diminution of Colin or his role," said Bettman.

Campbell will continue in his job of director of hockey operations.

"I approached Gary back in March about supplemental discipline, and it was time to have a fresh look and fresh eyes at the process of discipline," said Campbell, who had held the job since 1998.

Shanahan, who won three Stanley Cups with the Detroit Red Wings, said his taking over the job won't necessarily result in longer suspensions.

"I can't promise you how I will view each individual situation," Shanahan said. "I do love the physical aspect of hockey and it is a very difficult and fine balance to keep that in the game to allow players to play on their toes, but at the same time know what they can and cannot do.

"I will promise you when I do make those decisions, I will try and make my thought process, and everything that went into that thought process, very clear and very visible to the entire hockey world."

Mavs laugh off Dirk's finger injury

Brian Cardinal took one look at Dirk Nowitzki's injured finger, turned to the Dallas Mavericks' trainer and recommended his treatment plan.

"Cut it at the knuckle," the Mavericks backup joked, making a scissors motion with his right hand. "Like Ronnie Lott."

Nowitzki's injury was more source of fun than concern yesterday, starting from the moment he woke up. He expected the torn tendon at the tip of his left middle finger to be sore and throbbing and it wasn't.

Nowitzki figures it will be mostly a nuisance for the next month or two. He and his shooting coach worked to see how he can compensate, starting with Game 2 of the NBA final against the Miami Heat tonight.

Nowitzki was hurt trying to strip the ball from Chris Bosh in the fourth quarter of Tuesday's 92-84 Game 1 loss. The injury generally takes six to eight weeks to heal. Because the problem is on Nowitzki's non-shooting hand, most of what he does offensively will not be affected.

"I think once the game starts, the adrenalin starts flowing, I don't think it will really slow me down much," Nowitzki said. "I'm not really worried about it."

Maybe he should be.

Because Miami knows where he's hurting, and everyone knows how much Nowitzki means to Dallas, it only makes sense that guys are going to swipe at his hands more than ever.

"Somebody's going to swat down on it, whether they want to or not," Bosh said. "It's painful. As ballplayers, we all go through it."

▶ Vancouver's Alex Burrows mixes it up with Boston's Patrice Bergeron last night.

Bruins calling Burrows a biter

◐ Boston irked over scrum involving scrappy Canuck forward ◐ Talk swirls about possibility of NHL discipline

A chippy opener to the Stanley Cup final turned bizarre last night when Vancouver's Alex Burrows appeared to bite the finger of a Boston Bruins player during a scrum at the end of the first period.

A replay showed the Canucks winger with Boston centre Patrice Bergeron's finger in his mouth during a scrum behind the Bruins net at the 20-minute mark of the first period.

After the game, won 1-0 by the Canucks, Bergeron was sporting a bandage on his right index finger.

"He said that I put my finger in his mouth," Bergeron said. "He said, 'What else do you want me to do?' (A referee) said he didn't see it."

The incident capped a nasty first game between clubs that rarely see each other during the regular season.

Burrows denied that he bit Bergeron after the game.

"I don't think so," he said. "He had his fingers in my mouth but I didn't think I bit him. You saw. He put his hand up and put it in my face and his fingers in my mouth, and that's what happened."

When asked about a possible suspension, Burrows replied: "Next question." He was then hauled away from reporters by a member of the team's media relations staff.

"All I can say is the league is going to look at it — for sure— and they're going to make the right call."

BRUINS FOWARD MILAN LUCIC ON CANUCKS FORWARD ALEX BURROWS

Bergeron downplayed the incident.

"I don't want to start a war of words here," Bergeron said. "I've got to concentrate on my game."

But Boston coach Claude Julien was less than impressed. He said such an incident should not be seen at the NHL level.

"Obviously, there was something that happened," Julien said. "I guess I'll save my comments for after I see it. But if that's the case, it's a classless move."

Vancouver captain Henrik Sedin, who was involved in the scrum, said he did not see the incident.

The scuffle began after Bergeron hit Sedin into the end boards as the first-period buzzer sounded.

The series already has a physical edge to it after plenty of rough stuff in Game 1.

Boston defenceman Andrew Ference hacked Henrik Sedin to the ice with a cross check in the second period after the whistle had blown. Raffi Torres gave Boston's Chris Kelly a punch in the face. Daniel Sedin backed into Thomas, bowling the Bruins goaltender over.

None of the plays drew a penalty.

"We knew this was the way they were going to play," Henrik Sedin said. "We're going to have to battle for every inch we get."

Canuck defenceman Dan Hamhuis sent Lucic cartwheeling through the air with a hip check in the second period. The Bruins' David Krejci took exception and cross-checked Hamhuis.

Hamhuis went to the Canuck dressing room and didn't return. There was no word on his status.

QUESTION: 14

Hanson Company manufactures two different types of receivers, a regular Model R and a special features Model S. The company has limited resources. On an annual basis it has a total of 480 direct labour-hours and a total of 300 lbs. of material available for use in the manufacture of these receivers. The company uses linear programming to determine a production schedule that will maximize the company's profit.

Based on the company's current data on selling prices and production costs, it is estimated that the sale of Model R will contribute $7 profit per unit and the sale of Model S will contribute $10 profit per unit. Resources used in the production of the two receivers are as follows. (Let Model S = S and Model R = R.)

	Model S	Model R
Raw materials used per unit	5 lbs.	3 lbs.
Labour used per unit	6 hours	4 hours

The objective function for Hanson Company can be expressed as:

(A) 5S + 3R < = 300
(B) 6S + 4R < = 480
(C) Max 7R + 10S
(D) Min 5S + 3R
